THE VEIL LIFTED.

Light on American Statescraft by John Sherman.

RECOLLECTIONS OF FORTY YEARS.

Great, Bold, Blame, Arthur, Hartson and Others Reviewed and Criticized.

"Chicago, Oct. 18.—The intrigues and the traitorous efforts of the last half century of American statesmen are revealed in the new light of stern criticism in John Sherman's Recollections of Forty Years in the House, Senate and Cabinet, just published in this city. The new that the venerable senator would never neglect long kept out the political history which has been so exhaustively treated. Great, bold, blameworthy, Arthur, Hartson and other politicians leaders are spoken with unmitigated praise for their high personal worth and statesmanship, and such is the guarded and circumspect language which the author uses in his judgment of the conduct of the administration. The language is almost entirely apologetic rather than direct, but it stands out clearly in the work.

As anticipated, the feature of the book is in its frankness, the style in which Mr. Sherman has extenuated rather than the professional blemishes. The work is marked by clear and extensive and skillful expression of opinion, but little attempt to argue or prove.

Owing to the close association of Mr. Sherman and James A. Garfield, the editor of the commissary of the United States to the president of the Union, he was one of the most prominent members of the bank. The author, while carefully avoiding a direct charge of corruption on the part of the president, very significantly makes a place that Mr. Garfield was the man to whom he gave the trusted leader of the Sherman forces. After showing by the publication of private letters, covering a period of years, of numerous persons who were in close touch with Mr. Sherman, in reality his political party, Mr. Sherman gives in detail the history of the national convention of 1888.

Following the account of his own struggle for nomination, he says: "I was then thoroughly disengaged from what occurred at the Chicago convention, and had become thoroughly disgusted in the result, though I equally afterward I heard incidents and circumstances which seemed to establish the want of integrity on the part of some of the delegates, and tended to show that for some time before the meeting of the convention the nomination of Garfield had been agreed upon."

The author says: "It is abundantly shown that Mr. Garfield, who was also a candidate for the presidency before the convention that nominated Garfield, the significance of the party's opposition to the nomination was not recognized by President Garfield as secretary of the treasury to resist nomination." In the latter part of November, 1888, General Garfield came to Washington and called upon Mr. Sherman, who was then secretary of state, to be secretary of state. Garfield came to my house directly from Bixby's and informed me he had impeded that office to Blaine and that he was to be secretary of state. And Blaine thought it would not be proper for him to be secretary of the treasury, as it would be regarded as an unnecessary discrimination by other members of the cabinet. I promptly said, 'I don't give a damn.'"

The Duke exhibited his card, but was compelled to accompany the officers in the station, which he did under protest. He was ignorant of the fact, and was advised to go to New York, where he might be induced to change his mind. After hearing both sides of the case, Rosamund Lyon told the Duke he had been clearly guilty of trifling, one of the party's most strenuous efforts, and with a few words of rebuke rebuked him.

The Duke refused to be interviewed again, but his secretary said he regarded the proceeding as grave.

At the end of the trial the Indian chief showed himself to be the best vessel of her class. The government's statement is that she is now prepared, but "fighting fit." It is known she is to command her ship mainly as happy as a king.

It has outstripped all competition, Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder.

ULTIMATES TO LIFE.

And a Bid from Carnegie, N.Y., for the President.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 18.—W.A. Bixby, who is in the city tonight with the Corbin show, says that President David W. Bixby, "Bob" Bixby, as he is known in the state, is in the city Monday evening. He will be here until Friday, and will be engaged in a trial of strength with the Corbin show, he will certainly have a chance to fight. Chancery Commissioner will doubtless release Corbin on a writ of habeas corpus, or if he is not released, he is a right to sue for his freedom.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure

I decided to try it. The first bottle made a decided improvement in my condition, and five bottles have completely cured me."
